The Spirit Of Leadership

By R.Rangarajan
 Leadership is often misconstrued with rank, power, position or prominence. True leadership is in your inner reservoir of evolutionary qualities attained through consistent effort and self development. This mature and prudently unselfish nature stands out from the herd, manifesting as key personality traits:

Action Level 1.
 Giver – A leader is a giver. He works for a higher ideal beyond his self centered interests. True leader is a self reliant soul, seldom craving for personal profits. Remains a giver. Never a taker.

2. Action oriented – Fluctuating results from action don't bother or frighten a leader's resolve as he doesn't work for fulfilling likes and dislikes. Ardently following his intellectual conviction and clear conscience, a leader simply leads the way. Never turning result oriented. His action generates energy. Never does he succumb to pressure or fatigue. His mind remains constantly charged with the initiative he serves.

Emotional Level 1. Creates space for others – A true leader understands the essence of team spirit. Having diluted or dissolved the ego, he considers himself a spoke in the wheel of life. Remaining accommodative, he facilitates others to participate in fulfilling the common objective. Doesn't discriminate people based on their limitation. Instead promotes their strength. Ultimately helps them overcome limitation. 2. Identifies with one and all – A true leader doesn't fall a prey to selective attachment or preferential relationship based on personal likes and dislikes. His emotions freely flow towards one and all. Yet remaining equidistant.

Relationship Level 1. Duties not rights – A true leader focuses on performing duties. Not on demanding rights. A leader focusing on rights turns a dictator, ultimately consumed in the fire of his self-centeredness like a fly consumed by the light it embraces. 2. Insightful but not Judgmental – A leader, with clarity of perception, remains acutely aware of the nature of people, environment and associated factors. Yet, seldom gets conditioned or judgmental towards people. His intellect always takes fresh measurements.

Intellectual Level 1. Knowledge and Humility – Knowledge alongside awareness of ignorance makes one humble and open to learn more. Thus humility displaces arrogance. A knowledgeable person attempts to differentiate himself from rest. Whereas a leader remains approachable. Never cordons himself off. Rubbing shoulder with everyone, he assumes no air about himself.

2. Sense of Value and Sense of Proportion – A leader's intellect functions with higher values, engaging the mind in service and sacrifice. Yet in implementing and following those values, he is watchful not to turn rigid and fanatic. Values are followed with its ultimate purpose in focus. Appropriately proportioned, delicately implemented.

Vedanta develops insightful qualities in a person, enabling exceptional leadership. All the world would then stand up and say, 'here is a man, when comes such another?'

Vedanta Cultural Foundation Canada, is organising a 3 evening lecture by Sunandaji on the Bhaja Govindam on 5, 6 & 7 June at the Unitarian Congregation Mississauga and a youth workshop on 6 June, Saturday from 10 to 12noon.
